IIJ Nominated for 2002 World Technology Award in Communications Technology

TOKYO, July 22, 2002 - Internet Initiative Japan Inc. ("IIJ", NASDAQ: IIJI), Japan's leading Internet access and comprehensive solutions provider, today announced that the Company has been designated as one of 13 corporate nominees for its innovation in the field of Communications Technology in the 2002 World Technology Awards sponsored by the World Technology Network in association with Nasdaq Stock Exchange, Time Magazine and other companies. The World Technology Awards have been created to honor innovative individuals and companies worldwide who most contribute to the advancement of emerging technologies for the benefit of business and society, and whose work will likely have the greatest future significance and impact over the long-term. Winners in each of the 10 technology categories will be announced at this year's World Technology Summit on July 22, 2002 in New York City.

"We are very pleased to be nominated for this award, which clearly demonstrates our position as a technological leader in the changing network solutions market," said Koichi Suzuki, President and CEO of IIJ. "Since our establishment in 1992 as a trailblazer of Japan's Internet industry, we have created a variety of industrial standards in Japan. These include: introduction of commercial Internet connectivity services in 1993; commercial firewall services in 1994; Internet streaming services in 1995; IPv6 (Internet protocol Version 6, next generation Internet protocol) service in 1999; and Service Level Agreement in 1999. In the broadband age since year 2000, we have been proactively promoting a new network standard optimized for broadband content distribution called CDN (Content Distribution Network). We believe IIJ can continue to greatly contribute to society as a leader in the telecom field by exploring and identifying the true essence of changing forces within the industry, and leveraging our technological expertise, thereby to adapt to the rapidly evolving market," said Koichi Suzuki, the President and CEO of IIJ.
